Phillips may agree to two separate permits

One hockey rink at a time

By Rebecca Piro

Phillips Academy may be willing to build one hockey rink and see its effects on the area before starting another, says its facilities director.

This and other possible alterations to the master plan may be good news to the Neighbors of Phillips Academy, an organized group of residents with concerns about the project, who have been skeptical about traffic issues and a single permit for the project, among other things.

The Neighbors have been rallying to persuade the Planning Board to issue a permit for only the first phase of PA's plan, which would allow construction of only one rink. PA would need to acquire a second permit from the board after construction on the first rink was completed, before they could begin building the second rink. This would give the board and the public a chance to review progress and offer their opinions the best course of action for the next rink.

Board member Linn Anderson asked PA Director of Facilities Michael Williams if he would be willing to entertain such a possibility at the Planning Board on Tuesday. "Could you come back for the second rink under a new filing, where the Planning Board could do a review process (before issuing the second permit)?" she inquired.

"Yes," said Williams. "It may make sense to have a condition for review worded into the permit."

However, Williams added, he wants everyone to understand that PA fully intends to complete both phases of the project. "We still want to build the full site, and we want people to realize we're headed in that direction," he said.

"A project of this magnitude is unprecedented in this area," said Tom Childs of 244 South Main St., and a member of the Neighbors. "Everyone will be better served if only the first phase is applicable to the permit, not both," he said.

There she is — Competing in her first pageant ever, Andover native Jennifer Powers already has been named Miss Illinois. Known for her singing talent, the Northwestern University student will try to become the next Miss America in October.

Will an Andover miss soon be Miss America?

By Neil Fater

When millions of people tune in to see the next Miss America Oct. 14, they may see a young Andover woman walking down the runway, waving back at them.

Jennifer Powers, 20, an Andover High grad now attending Northwestern University, already has been crowned Miss Illinois. This fall, she'll be one of the 51 contestants vying for the country's most coveted crown, Miss America.

But, unlike many of the other women in the pageant who have competed in dozens of competitions before, Powers has a very restricted runway resume.

This year's Miss America pageant is the first pageant she has ever entered. The former Lavender Hill Lane resident even used her old Andover High prom dress and borrowed an outfit or two for the local pageant she needed to win to qualify for the state round.

So what was she thinking when she won the state pageant and Miss Illinois, Jade Smalls, began putting the state crown on her head?

"I guess my first thought was, 'Oh, my God. I have so much work to do,'" she says. "My whole life is going to change."

Powers says she had never considered competing in a pageant

Centenarian sees birthday — 100-year-old Blanche Jouret eyes great-grandson Kevin Flowers and enjoys the company of fellow great-grandson Cameron Flowers, granddaughter Patricia Flowers and Theresa Catalano, Wingate's activities director.

100 years, and counting

On Tuesday, Blanche Jouret shared her 100th birthday with her closest family members, all of whom came together to celebrate a century of a lifetime.

"Happy birthday, Gramma!" gleefully shouted Jouret's great-grandson Cameron, who will turn 3 this month. He skipped over to hand her five brightly colored balloons. "I brought you b'loons!"

It was a party of eight that gathered to honor Jouret's milestone at the Wingate Nursing Home on Andover Street. Jouret's granddaughter, Patty Flowers, sat her son Kevin, 10 months, on Jouret's lap for a birthday kiss, while Patty's husband Bill helped Cameron prepare to blow out the birthday candle. Ed McParland, Jouret's grandson, had videotape in hand, and Anne and Frank McParland watched their grand-nephews play busily.

"They are wonderful," murmured Jouret, surveying the room. "All these people are my family."

Jouret, who has been a resident of Andover for 50 years, met her husband Edward Jouret in Connecticut and was married in her 20s. Her husband's job in the textile mills required them to relocate often, landing the couple in Tennessee, Maine, Pennsylvania, and finally Massachusetts, where she lived in the Flint Circle and Washington Park neighborhoods.

The Jourets had one son, John Jouret, and one daughter, Marylin Jouret, who are both now deceased. Jouret has been living at Wingate since August of 1996.

Today, the small family that started with Jouret, an only child, has grown, but still remains small, said Anne McParland.

"There has been so few of us that we're very close," she said, adding that she often enjoys taking care of Cameron and Kevin for their mom.

"It's quite remarkable," said Patty of her grandmother's milestone. "And it is wonderful that the kids can have this experience with their great-grandmother, who has spanned a century. She's had so much experience," she said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Capital conversation

Representative Barry Finegold will be in Baltimore, Md., tomorrow and Saturday, July 14 and 15, to take part in the Democratic Leadership Council's National Conversation.

U.S. Senator John Kerry suggested Finegold participate because of his interest in "new economy issues." Finegold has said elected officials need to learn more about the emerging businesses and technology that are predicted to continue driving the economy.

Last year more than 150 state and local elected officials participated in the event, which will feature President Bill Clinton as the keynote speaker.

Talk with the state rep

Representative Barry R. Finegold will be holding office hours in Andover on Thursday, July 20.

From 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. he'll be at the Andover Senior Center, and from 6 to 7 p.m. he'll be at Memorial Hall Library.

Finegold will also be at the Lawrence Senior Center on Tuesday, July 25 from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

Too many donuts?

The Andover Board of Health is holding a cholesterol screening clinic on Wednesday, July 19 from 9 a.m. until noon. An appointment is necessary. The clinic is for Andover residents only.

The simple finger-stick test for total cholesterol costs $5 and does not require fasting.

For more information, call the health department at 623-8295.

New inspection sticker

Responding to consumers and law enforcement officials, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Daniel A. Grabauskas has introduced a newly redesigned inspection sticker. The new sticker is easier to read and has a design to ensure that it will remain bonded to a vehicle's windshield.

"The Registry heard the concerns raised by consumers and law enforcement officials," Grabauskas said in a release. "They wanted a sticker that was easier to read and we needed to address, with our vendor, the fact that some stickers were not sticking properly."

Web question

Last week's question was "Do you think Andover should open its town charter, which potentially will allow residents to make sweeping changes to town government?"

Thought response was not overwhelming, by a vote of 10-7, respondents as of early Wednesday morning said they did want to open the town charter.

Five said, "Yes, Andover is too big for its current form of government," and another five said, "Yes, but I do not want sweeping changes."

Only one said, "No, I am afraid the town might end up changing more than I want," while six answered, "No, Andover is fine the way it is."

This week's question is:

Swinging success, before secondary school

It's already been a busy week for Jaclyn Sweeney, for whom 18 holes of golf are all in a day's work.

But, Friday, Sweeney will putt with the best of them at the Lowell Women's City Golf Tournament.

The difference between Jackie and the other female competitors? This golfer is 11 years old, putting against women years ahead of her in age and tournament experience. But, so far, Jaclyn seems to belong.

After all, she took the title for the 13 and under division at the New England PGA junior tournament on Tuesday, and Wednesday she was scheduled to play at the New Hampshire Junior PGA tournament in Portsmouth.

Jackie started hitting golf balls only four years ago, when she discovered one of her father's clubs in the garage.

"She used to drag out an old club into our backyard and slap balls," Joe Sweeney remembers. She started competing in tournaments only a year ago, when she really started to get serious about the sport.

Today, Jackie has her own clubs and equipment, most of which bears the logo of her favorite female golf pro, Nancy Lopez.

While Jackie busies herself year-round with softball, lacrosse and ski racing, her favorite time is spent on the green, she says.

"I like golf the most, because I like the competition and that it is not a team sport," she says.

In Jackie's eyes, age makes no difference when it's time to hit the links. Despite her youth, she feels no intimidation from her fellow players and competitors, because, "I usually hit as well as they do," she said. The other players receive her as an equal. "They treat me like a normal adult. It doesn't seem like I get special treatment," she says.

Jackie's father is thrilled with his young daughter's achievements, but he is adamant about letting Jackie lead the way.

"Children's sports are a very positive experience," he says, despite a seemingly growing trend in violence around youth sports, such as the North Reading ice-hockey incident last week. It is up to parents to encourage their children in sports, but not to pressure them, he says.

"Jackie loves playing golf right now, but we don't want to force her or push her," says Sweeney. "If the interest is there, we'll support her. But if it becomes a chore, then she'll back right down."

Despite her youth, Jackie is already thinking long-term. "I think I'm going to stick with golf for a long time," says Jackie, who can see herself going pro someday. But for now, she says, she's just enjoying herself.

A diamond, in the fairway — Jaclyn Sweeney has sparkled in tournaments such as last year's Plantation Junior Golf Tournament in Florida.

"It's fun — that's the whole point of the game," she says.

Powers-ful Illinois performance

until Kate Shindle, Miss America 1998, called her and suggested she try for the honor. Shindle is a recent Northwestern grad who had performed with Powers in a college musical-theater production. Obviously, she was impressed.

Yet, even after talking with the former Miss America, Powers says she was not interested.

"My first thought was, 'No.' I never thought of myself as fitting that mold," she says. "But it's a scholarship pageant. It's not a beauty pageant. I didn't understand that."

A voice major, Powers also was busy focusing on earning a 4.0 grade point average, and preparing six classical pieces to perform for the voice faculty, which can tell sophomores to consider changing majors.

So Shindle and Kelli Lotrich, the executive director of the local scholarship pageant that Powers ultimately entered, kept calling. Finally, just two weeks before the qualifying Miss Northern Illinois pageant, Powers decided to give it a try.

She called her mom, Maryellen, asked her to fly to Illinois. The two went shopping for a bathing suit at a local mall. Though Powers borrowed a dress from a sorority sister to wear during the talent competition and had little time to research additional information on her "platform" — the issue she would promote if selected — Powers wowed the judges, particularly in the talent competition. Powers experience in musical theater paid big dividends.

"She walks on the stage and she becomes the focus," says Lotrich. "I don't know if it's the good karma or what. I think she's amazing on stage. Everyone else could fall down, and you'd watch Jenny."

Still, going into the states, many people had to consider Powers a long shot.

"There were a lot of veterans there, and a lot of girls who have been to states. One of them said they had been there six times," she says.

But there were those who believed the rest of the competition would feel the power of Powers' musical talent. For the states, she decided to perform opera publicly for the first time.

"Just from what they were telling us out there, because her talent was so strong, they felt she would place at least in the top five," says Jennifer's dad, David Powers. "After that, anything can happen from there."

However, Powers had little time to prepare for the states.

"I was at a disadvantage. I got out of school just two weeks before the pageant. It was really, really crazy for me," she says. "I finished my last final and I opened this huge book, Frames of Mind: The Theory of Multiple Intelligences.

"People are asking, 'What are

Powers

you reading that for, Jenny? Is that for another course?"

In a sense, it was. Powers was taking a crash course in how to prepare to be Miss America.

So she studied what she could about her platform — the multifaceted importance of the arts in education. She spoke with political leaders, participated in conferences, even teamed up with VH1's Save the Music for an instrument drive.

"Going into the pageant I had this attitude, 'I've done the best I can, given the time frame.' I went in thinking 'Yes, I am raw. I am a newbie, but I have a lot to offer the program.' I was hoping they'd see my potential," she says.

Obviously, the judges did. Powers won the overall talent competition, and, ultimately, the Miss Illinois title. "It is such a physical, emotional, spiritual challenge," says Powers. "You just really have to know who you are, and what you stand for. You have to have a belief system. It's imperative. I don't think a lot of girls I competed with did.

"For me, I was doing it for ($50,000) scholarship money, and it's an avenue where I can continue to be an advocate for my passion," she says. "One of my goals is to change the public's perception of what opera is. That it can be fun. It is entertaining."

Question quandary

While the talent competition was clearly one of Powers' strengths, she says the most difficult part of the pageant for her is answering on-stage questions.

"At the Miss America pageant, I'll continue to stress about that the most," she laughs.

"I've grown up performing, and not speaking publicly," she says. "I've always been successful portraying a character and saying someone else's words. This is the first time I've had to be a communicator and just be Jenny Powers."

Before the finals, when contestants face another round of questions, Powers was concerned about what might happen.

"I thought that I would blank, or not be able to articulate my thoughts," she says. "But what was so calming was there was a child on stage who was more petrified than I was."

The pageant organizers had decided to have children ask the finalists one question of their own. Powers may have drawn the short straw here, but apparently made the most of it.

"One girl was asked, 'Do you have a boyfriend?' My question was 'If you woke up in the morning and you were a boy, what would you do?'" says Powers. "After a lot of thought I said, 'I guess I'd look for a pretty girl like me or you,' and I pointed to the little girl on stage. What do you say to that?"

"The look on Jenny's face was priceless," says Lotrich. "She had fun working the crowd, too, because they enjoyed that the little girl had asked that question."

While others appeared to have more prepared statements about their platform, Powers believes she excelled because she came across as more genuine.

"I was really speaking from my heart. It might not have been as clearly stated, but I think people listened more because it was straight from the heart," she says.

"That's completely what did it for her," says Lotrich, "and her talent's phenomenal, which doesn't hurt."

With town growing, tube time slotted for Planning Board

By Rebecca Piro

It may prove no match for NYPD Blue — or even The PJs — but Planning Board meetings will be broadcast live to Andover residents on Tuesday nights, at least on a trial basis.

Andover started this trial period with the board's Tuesday, July 11 meeting.

Giving residents the chance to tune in at home has been argued insistently by a few adamant residents recently, said Planning Director Steve Colyer. So, the board figured, why not try it?

"We talked about it after the last meeting," said Colyer. "There hasn't been an overwhelming cry to get it televised, but if it (generates the interest), then great."

Some residents have argued that the Planning Board deals with issues just as important as those discussed at the selectmen's meetings that have been televised consistently for years. However, Planning Chairman Michael Miller said the Planning Board's agenda doesn't always conjure the same level of interest as the selectmen's.

Despite the range of interest levels,

Colyer believes the Planning Board is worthy of film time, because the board often deals with townwide issues.

"You generally don't find (other boards) involved in issues that have townwide ramifications," he said.

"We deal with some monstrous projects," agreed board member Paul Salafia. "I think it makes perfect sense for people to be able to follow public hearings from week to week."

But Miller hopes that the televised meetings won't encourage interested residents to trade in their front-row seats in town hall's conference room for their living-room couches.

"It's no substitute for participating," he said. "If people can tune in, that's good, but if people really have a concern, they really should come to the meeting."

The cost of going prime time will come from $5,000 allocated to cover town meetings in Andover's year-long contract with cable provider Media One, said Finance Director Tony Torrisi.

The communications company will probably hire high-school students to do the filming on Tuesday nights, he said.

Take a chill pill, mom and dad

As a politician, State Rep. Barry Finegold is probably used to being called names.

But a few years before he ever ran for public office, Finegold was given the finger by a 12-year-old and sworn at by several adults.

Why? Not because of his political views. Because he was a youth football coach.

Andover has long had the reputation of being a suburb where parents push their kids — perhaps in some cases too hard.

With the recent incident in Reading, where a man is being charged with beating a man to death over a youth-hockey disagreement, it's healthy for a town like Andover to revisit that issue.

"I think what happens sometimes is people are so busy in their daily lives and they don't turn it off when they coach their kids or they go to their games," says Finegold. "But when you let kids breathe, I think that's when they perform."

Very few kids will ever excel at the professional level.

"It's one in a million throughout the U.S., and people have to realize that," says Fire Chief Chuck Murnane, who had two kids go to college on sports scholarships. "My advice would be to go to the games, watch the kids, support the kids. But let the kids go, let them have fun."

"I can honestly say, if I had put the pressure on, they never, ever, ever would have gotten scholarships. They would have gotten fed up," he says.

"We have a lot of people who got here by being overachievers. There's nothing wrong with that," says child psychologist Larry Larsen. But these parents can't force children into giving everything to a particular activity of the parents' choosing.

What can parents do?

"Start to get a sense of humor. Stop living your life through your child's," says Larsen. "Let them have a life and a childhood, and let them be — especially with boys — in touch with their emotional selves."

Hopefully, driven parents will take the advice before more of them take out their anger on others. Because a number of those involved in youth sports believe a fist fight over a kid's game could easily happen here.

People on the street — Addressing the charter commission

Most want change, differ on how much

After much hemming and hawing, it looks like a review of the town charter will occur.

Selectmen voted 3-2 in February to review the town charter, which could allow Andover to make significant changes to its governmental structure. However, since February, nothing has happened.

But on Monday, Selectman John Hess reintroduced the topic of a charter review, as selectmen discussed goals for the new fiscal year.

Although Chairman Brian Major, a review opponent, expressed concerns that the new board might need to come to a new consensus on the matter, Ted Teichert, the only new selectmen since February, quickly stated that was not necessary.

"(A review) is in concrete, because it was already voted on," he said.

Teichert promises a charter review this year, though it is possible it won't be on the final list of goals for two reasons: selectmen have not yet publicly discussed how much of a priority it is, and, as Teichert pointed out, the review may not fall into the category of a 2001 goal, since it was actually voted on last fiscal year.

Major also wants to "narrow the focus" of a charter study, before selectmen establish the commission itself.

"We need to identify the constraints (under which the commission would review the charter) so it's not such a wide-scoping job," he added.

With such an important committee apparently on its way, the Townsmen asked residents where they would place a charter review on a list of priorities, and whether the town needs one at all.

Here are their responses:

Patricia Finneran

"I think in any town eventually there has to be some changes," she said, and those changes need to be looked at realistically, especially in a growing community.

She supports a charter review as long as there is no possibility of changing to a city format, because, "I like living in a small, New England community."

Instead, she would like to see small changes in the town-meeting format itself to make meetings more time-efficient.

Roger Dufresne — Don't touch it.

Roger Dufresne

Resident since 1950

"I like (the town meeting form of government) the way it is," says Dufresne.

He says he likes the option of having a voice at town meeting, and has never given a thought to the need for a charter review.

Just how good is Andover?

Editor, Townsmen:

As I read the Townsmen article about the majority of Andover High School students being on the honor roll ("Are honors an honor?" June 15) I couldn't help but recall the stories of Garrison Keillor about the town of Lake Wobegon, Minn., "where all the women are strong, all the men are good looking, and all the children are above average."

Tennis instructor has no love for trash

Editor, Townsmen:

While waiting for my class to arrive at the Andover High School tennis courts Monday morning, I noticed quite a bit of trash lying on the courts. In disgust, I decided to take an inventory of the material that apparently was too heavy to carry to the trash barrel. Here it is:

- metal tennis can covers (spread over the various courts they used) - 18;
- empty bottles - 6;
- tennis ball cans - 4;
- plastic covers - 3;
- tonic cans - 6;
- paper - 9.

This was at only one end of the courts. I didn't check the back ends. Now comes my question: Are you peo-

Sports-crazy society needs to focus on balance

Editor, Townsmen:

Do only neurotic parents become "crazy" when they see their children do well in sports?

I just read the Boston Globe and Eagle Tribune account of the death of the hockey parent after a youth hockey practice.

Why is so much press given to children and adolescents when they do well at sports but little when they win a physics prize? Or a mathematics competition? Or a geography competition?

Or science project? Or met with an elder for twelve months? Or had a "Little Sister" for two years?

We need healthy, active, sports participating youth. But we need them to participate with a life's balance in mind.

It pleases me that the Townsmen has decreased its coverage devoted to youth sports and balanced it with more articles about outstanding academic and volunteer contributions of our youth in the last three years. Keep it up.

And do more sleuthing and reporting of the volunteer and intellectual contributions of our youth. Each week ask teachers and ministers and Scout leaders about the wonderful accomplishments of our youth as well as the sports coaches.

Lastly, have you any info on what happens to parents when their children excel at sports in America today? Is it a disease? I think I had it. Maybe we need a support group.

Joan Ashlock
1 Sleepy Hollow Lane

ple really this sloppy? Do you do that at home also, or in your driveway?

This wasn't from kids. Kids rarely open new cans of balls. These had to be (so-called) "adults."

I'll admit it is harder each year for me to walk to the trash barrels, but I figure the exercise will do me good. However, these adults (?) apparently figure they will save their strength and be able to play longer if they don't walk to the barrels. I even found one Table Talk small pie wrapper about 10 feet from the barrel. What a great saving of effort. Just drop it on the nearest piece of ground.

So to those slobos who are saving such physical effort, don't put your trash away, drop it where you stand. While you are at it, drop it on the court on which you are playing. Maybe we'll be lucky and you'll sprain an ankle and leave us with one less trash maker.

Another piece of sand in my craw is the traditional decoration of paper cups used as a message on the fence nearest the High School.

The cups are so high up that one can't easily get rid of them without a ladder or a long pole. If you are willing to put them up, you also have an obligation to take them down. How about it? (Apparently it is also "traditional" to leave them in the fence).

About five or six years ago I thought signs should be put up on the fences to persuade the trash-droppers to put the stuff in the barrel. I wrote a suggested sign and was told it was "too strong." I didn't think it strong enough.

Changing Andover: Residents ready for commission

Jordan Fuhr

8 Penni Lane

Summer staffer at youth services

Lived in Andover nine years

"There's been so much growth in the town the past couple years. It's good to have change, and it's good to go over what has changed."

Fuhr wants to see the charter reviewed, participates in town meeting, and says he would hate to see it eliminated from Andover.

"I think a lot of people would be unhappy (if town meeting were eliminated)."

Jordan Fuhr

He considers town meeting a great opportunity to have one's voice be heard, as was done with Andover Youth Services' petition for a skate park last year.

"Maybe we shouldn't change to a city format, but instead take a look at revamping (the town meeting format) without changing the entire system."

Stephanie Pellegrino

124 Bellevue Road

Six-year resident

"Yes, we need a charter review, because of the high growth in Andover." She occasionally attends town meetings, and appreciates the option of being able to participate directly in the community's decisions. However, meetings could be changed so they would run more efficiently, since long town meetings are "such a time commitment."

However, before jumping to make Andover a city, improving town meeting itself should first be considered, she says. "I don't think Andover is ready to make the leap yet (to become a city). Perhaps we should first try a representative form (of town meeting). A charter review is a moderate priority of the town, but should certainly be underway by 2001."

Claudia Heller

66 Whittier St.

More than 20-year resident

Heller familiar with what a charter review is. "I think it is important to review (the charter) and see what we are. The town has changed significantly since I've been here. It's gotten larger, and we're overdue (for a review)," she says.

She hasn't decided yet what the best change for Andover might be, but future discussion on the topic should bring to light whether Andover should keep its town-meeting format.

However, the charter review is not a top priority on her list. "It's one of several items that need to be addressed," she says.

Claudia Heller

Ralph Manning

37 Summer St.

Lifelong resident of Andover

"I think we should have a mayor. Andover is too big to be a town. Town meeting is a thing of the past," says Manning.

If a complete switch to a city format was not approved by the townspeople, he thinks the next-best option is to try a representative town meeting format.

Since the charter review was passed by the selectmen back in February, there should be no more delays and the review should get underway this fall, he says.

He thinks there will be no shortage of interest among townspeople to form such a commission.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

100 YEARS AGO

When fires broke out at the D'Arcy and Tucker barns, officials suspected that an experienced arsonist orchestrated the crimes. But Assistant Fire Marshall Casey, with the help of Fire Chief Frye, uncovered the true culprit — a 7-year-old boy with a penchant for pyromania.

Even thermometers placed in the shade rose to 100-plus-degree temperatures, as Andover underwent a severe heat wave reminiscent of nine straight sizzling days back in 1892. Two local residents passed away suddenly after complaints of intense exhaustion, a complication resulting from the heat wave.

No damage occurred when a horse load of hay belonging to Charles Rea tipped over in the middle of the town square.

75 YEARS AGO

Two serious collisions, combined with a number of arrests for speeding and driving while under the influence of alcohol, prompted Andover Chief of Police Frank M. Smith to issue a public "safe driving" warning for local residents.

Judge Colver J. Stone sentenced a North Andover man to 30 days in a house of correction after the man struck a baby carriage with his car and then fled the scene. A six-month-old child inside the carriage was thrown in to the roadway, but miraculously escaped unhurt.

The Arlington Mills band of Lawrence performed marches, overtures, southern melodies and popular music at a concert held on Balmoral Field in Andover. Audience members parked in a nearby lot honked their car horns after each piece.

Members of the local Square and Compass Club completed arrangements for a three-day community circus and country fair featuring an electric woman, a half woman and waltzing mice.

50 YEARS AGO

In response to requests for coeducation dating back to 1947, representatives from Merrimack College announced that the school would admit women starting in the fall.

"Art Schools U.S.A., 1950," an exhibit of student work from 25 professional art schools and college art departments, showed at the Addison Gallery for the third time. Judges from the American Federation of Arts planned to select two pictures from each participating institution to represent the exhibit in a nationwide tour.

Members of the Cross the Equator Club at Pomp's Pond swam daily with the hopes of accumulating enough hypothetical mileage to reach the earth's equator.

Boxing matches and a doughnut-eating contest topped the list of events held as a form of entertainment for children of local playgrounds.

25 YEARS AGO

After wrapping up formal agreements with General Motors, Bill DeLuca Chevrolet purchased Woodworth Motors in Shawshen Square. DeLuca operated an automobile agency in Lawrence for several years before taking over the Chevrolet agency in Haverhill.

In order to clear room for additional office space, workers removed two safes — each weighing in the vicinity of two tons — from the Andover Town Hall.

New calculators offer student investigators new freedom

Andover High School and middle-school students will be taking their science classes to the great outdoors starting in September to put the schools' new TI-83 Plus calculators to use.

Math and science teachers have been involved in workshops during the last two weeks learning how to operate the new calculators.

Maryellen Duffy, Andover High science-program director, thinks that the students will love the innovative calculators because they don't restrict the students from outdoor experiments.

"We are real excited to be able to use the equipment in September. The students will not be tied to the lab rooms; they can measure water, air and open space. They can transfer data from computer to calculator and vice versa. They can also transfer data from calculator to calculator," she said.

According to Duffy, the students will be able to measure acceleration with the calculators, which will record the exact points of acceleration, deceleration and where an object turns.

Duffy said the calculators will be attached with computer probes to measure such things as pH, temperature and motion.

"We used to use an accelerometer, which is a bottle with a weight inside. It was basically a visual estimation. Now the students can get accurate results with the probe as opposed to visual guesses," Duffy said.

Instructors from Indiana and Westford joined instructors from Andover for the training. They were taught by Norma Mackenzie and Kenny Sconzo, who both teach chemistry and biology.

"For two weeks we were the students. We used the calculators for collection of data and analysis; the new calculators can store a lot more memory than the ones we used in classes before. They are really neat tools. The kids can move around and perform experiments," Duffy said.

grade ecology and earth-science programs at Andover High will be the main tenders for using the TI-83 Plus. Duffy hopes that in the future the calculators will also be used within the public schools' math programs.

Push for senior housing

Residents: Apartment complex would ruin neighborhood

By Neil Fater

Dean Shu has lived next to the Sisters of St. Clare for two decades now. He says if a 135-unit apartment complex is built in the monastery's place, it will ruin his neighborhood.

"Definitely, this type of program will tear apart the lifestyle," says Shu. "It will be a different community. It's not the one we bought into for 20 years."

Shu is not alone in this feeling. Dozens of residents from the River Road area came to a 5 p.m. neighborhood meeting and then a 7 p.m. Andover Housing Partnership meeting last Thursday to voice their opposition to the proposed change to the area.

With a new, smaller home for the sisters being built across the street from the sisters' current quarters, Avalon Bay Communities wants to turn the current home into a home for an apartment complex.

William McLaughlin, vice president of development for Avalon, says a portion of the units will be moderately priced, and he expects an outdoor heated pool, a hot tub, on-site maintenance, a fitness center and a business center on the site.

Residents say they think a complex for

The Sisters of St. Clare have sold their living quarters and the land in exchange for having new quarters built across the street for them. Construction of these new, smaller quarters is underway.

elderly residents would be more in keeping with the feel of the area.

"In a town of roughly 30,000, we have 5,200 over the age of 60. I know that housing is a major, major concern," says Maddy St. Amand, of Bailey Road. "It would make a difference in the senior population."

Neighbors fear that construction of an apartment complex would upset the reflective nature of an area they say they moved to for its quiet.

Resident Chuck Murnane takes over the not-so-hot seat

New Andover Fire Chief Chuck Murnane says the changing of the guard, from one Andover resident, Harold Wright, to another, himself, couldn't have gone much smoother.

Murnane officially assumed the leadership post last Thursday, July 6. He credits Wright with giving him a chief's office that has a good relationship with the firefighter's union and the people of the town.

"I'm not walking into a hornet's nest here. The morale seems to be exceptional," he says. "It's really a unified place right now."

"On the one hand, I couldn't ask for a better situation and, on the other hand, I wonder if there's anyplace to go but down," he jokes.

Murnane comes from a long line of firefighters, who together have served Andover for more than 100 years.

"My Uncle Jack is just thrilled," he says. "He brought me to work my first day back in April of '69. He gave me a little lecture. I don't want to see you pitching pennies with some of those guys in Bay Four," laughs Murnane.

Murnane's swearing-in ceremony was a special time for his family. It came on the anniversary of his wife's death.

"My wife was so good about what she expected after her death, and we were so close as a family, that the other night was a happy time for us. She wasn't there physically, but she was there spiritually. There was no second-guessing the date."

It's official — Chuck Murnane replaced outgoing chief Harold Wright at a swearing-in ceremony last Thursday. He received a standing ovation.

Selectmen goal tending

Monday night's goal-setting workshop was only the first of several to follow in the upcoming weeks, say selectmen, but they hope to finalize fiscal year 2001 goals by Sept. 1.

Starting at 6:30 p.m. Monday, selectmen went down a list of approximately 13 categories and 36 topics.

Categories included acquiring open space and conservation land, providing moderately priced housing, overseeing construction and ongoing projects, and improving town facilities.

Before next week's meeting, Chairman Brian Major will narrow the list to 24 topics. Then, selectmen will eliminate all but six or seven topics as the highest-priority goals.

Though most of the preliminary list will be eliminated from the final goals, the other issues will not be forgotten, said Major.

"The other things won't necessarily fall through the cracks," he said, explaining that while not top priority, selectmen could still discuss those issues during the year.

Inclusion of a charter review was suggested towards the end of the evening by Selectman John Hess.

Though more than one selectman acknowledged the necessity of acting upon last February's vote to establish a charter commission, the review may not be placed on the goals list, since selectmen have not yet agreed on its level of priority.

One at a time a PA possibility

Traffic changes in the master plan are a distinct possibility as well, according to Kenneth Cram, traffic engineer for PA. Cram announced that Mass Highway, which had previously refused to entertain any decreases on the Route 28 speed limit, may allow a speed reduction zone around the proposed rink entrance.

PA will recommend a transition between the marked 25 miles-per-hour zone south of the proposed entrance and the abrupt jump to 45 m.p.h. north of the entrance. Cram projects that a 35 m.p.h. zone between those two areas will slow traffic down.

In addition, Cram said, the highway department is not in favor of PA's plan for a center, left-turning lane on Route 28, because of a high potential for head-on collisions.

He said he recognized that both the speed limit and the left-turn lane have been issues of concern with the Neighbors, and they may be altered due to the combined concern of the state and community.

"(The traffic situation) is one of the things we need more discussion on," said Williams. "This is not a final solution yet."

The hearing will be continued to a special Planning Board meeting dedicated solely to Phillips on Tuesday, Aug. 1 at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall Library. Discussion will be capped at two hours.

The Planning Board will walk the site of the rinks project with PA officials on Tuesday, July 25 at 6 p.m.

The public is welcome to join, and the group will be meeting in the parking lot behind the Pearson Farmhouse.

A little help from state on rinks

By Rebecca Piro

The Neighbors of Phillips Academy just might get a little extra help from their state representative and senator in terms of communicating their concerns to PA about the hockey-rink project.

Representative Barry Finegold and Senator Sue Tucker met Tuesday night with the Neighbors, an organized group of residents, to hear what all the fuss was about.

Approximately 15 Neighbors members spent almost an hour at Tom Child's house, a property that directly abuts the project site, bringing Finegold and Tucker up to date. They listed several concerns including the applicability of the Dover Amendment to the project, traffic implications, usage hours, and lighting and noise disturbances.

In terms of the Dover Amendment, Finegold said there was probably no fault to be found in Phillips' application of the amendment as it is currently written.

"I think the Academy is using the Dover Amendment appropriately," he said. However, that does not mean that reasonable concerns should be thrown out the window, Tucker said.

"There are things the town can do to help you," she said. "They can't stop (the project), because it is under the Dover Amendment, but they can help you." The town may be able to enforce restrictions on the rink's hours of operation and lighting, she said.

Acknowledging the problem of traffic, Tucker suggested that she and Finegold may be able to help decrease the speed limit on Route 28, even though Mass Highway had previously warned that it would not entertain such a change.

Above all, the best bet for the neighbors to be heard is for them to stick together. "I think it would help if you pick one or two issues that you all stand together on," she said.

"We do want to know about the solutions you all have in your minds about these concerns, because we can do things to help. Though it's not easy and it's not quick, I will help you in every way I can," Tucker said.

Finegold promised to also take a serious look at possibly improving the Dover Amendment, to avoid the type of conflicts the hockey rink project has caused.

Both Tucker and Finegold intend to urge PA Head of School Barbara Chase to set a meeting date within two weeks with the Neighbors group to hear its concerns. A meeting had been proposed by Chase in a letter received by neighbors only days ago, but no date had been suggested.

Neighbors group feels 'ignored'

By Rebecca Piro

Five meetings between the Neighbors of Phillips Academy and PA representatives have convened since the project's inception last year as an opportunity for questions and concerns to be raised. But many Neighbors believe that they have not been taken seriously, and PA is only going through the motions.

"The Neighbors' questions have been ignored," said Tom Childs of 244 South Main St., a member of the Neighbors group, whose property lies directly behind the proposed hockey rinks. "Phillips Academy has chosen this site (for the project) and has adamantly stuck to this site." He says PA is aware of problems surrounding the project's site,

Phillips instructor looks for gold with 'Dead Pirates Society'

By Jeremy Adams

Around the same time that Phillips Academy English instructor Randall Peffer sails the Sarah Abbot into Boston Harbor with the Tall Ships, his new book about a summer adventure on the 55-foot research schooner will set a course for bookstores everywhere.

In the nautical novel Logs of the Dead Pirates Society, Peffer recounts the tale of a routine cruise through Buzzards Bay, Mass., that evolved into a deeply personal quest. It is just another watershed in the career of the seafaring storyteller and licensed captain, whose narrative Watermen won the Baltimore Sun Critics Choice Award back in 1985.

"I like the book, obviously," says Publisher Lothar Simon, the head of Sheridan House, Inc., and a 40-year veteran of the book business. "Otherwise, I wouldn't have published it."

According to its Web site <www.sheridanhouse.com>, Sheridan House offers boating enthusiasts everything from guides about cruising to accounts of disasters at sea. But something about the tone of Logs strikes Simon as unique.

"This one is a little bit different," says the publisher. "It's a rather introspective book (about) a voyage of discovery (and) premonition for the author that keeps the reader interested."

The watery work centers around the Sarah Abbot, a Nova Scotian racer built in 1966 that carries PA Summer Session students on a six-week marine biology course. And although its title takes off on the popular Robin Williams film Dead Poets Society, which focuses on a group of boarding school teenagers, Simon cautions against pigeonholing the book as just a story for children.

"It's not a juvenile book in any way," he says.

In addition to describing the southern Mass. towns and coves surrounding Buzzards Bay, Peffer peppers his tale with anecdotes about 17th-century explorers, ghosts and pirates. It is a literary tech-

Call him "Captain Book" — Randall Peffer signs copies of Logs of the Dead Pirates Society tonight at Barnes & Noble in Salem, N.H.

..... nique that — as Simon says — sustains coherence and broadens the overall impact of the novel.

"It's a book that doesn't really rely very much on (individual) highlights. Rather, it's an ongoing voyage of discovery."

The author will hit land-tonight, Thursday, for a 7:30 book-signing at Barnes & Noble in Salem, N.H. The event is free and open to the public.

Castle has lived and painted in Andover since 1982. Her paintings are in homes in Sweden, Canada, Belgium, United Arab Emirates, Germany, England, India and the U.S.

She prefers watercolors but also enjoys experimenting with photography, she says.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D., F.A.G.D.

OF NEWS TO WOMEN

Dentists have long cautioned their pregnant patients to be more diligent in their approach to oral health care. Elevated hormone levels make them more susceptible to gum disease. The same can be said of women who take birth control pills on a long-term basis. Most birth control pills contain a combination of estrogen and progesterone, both of which are also present during pregnancy. Because they dilate blood vessels, gum tissue becomes more susceptible to the destructive effects of bacteria. Women who have been taking oral contraceptives for more than two years are more likely to develop the gum infection known as gingivitis. Regular professional cleanings and good oral hygiene practices at home can help stave off any problems.

Our purpose in presenting this column is to exhibit the virtues of professional care and trustworthiness in achieving and maintaining a natural, vibrant smile. Through communication, compassionate concern, and a combination of proven techniques and innovative technology, all performed within a warm, positive environment, we attempt to move our patients toward an optimum state of oral health. Office hours are by appointment here at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. PH: 475-2431.

P.S. Be sure to inform the dentist if you are pregnant.

This is no mere walk in the Park for these women

Powerwalkers hit the streets

By Rebecca Piro

Step up to the challenge, and be sure to double-knot those laces.

Powerwalking has hit the streets of Andover.

A handful of women can be seen powerwalking — and skipping through the Park each Thursday.

But before you grab your sneakers and join them, don't be so sure you're in for a casual walk in the Park.

The women who powerwalk in the weekly program offered by the Andover Training Station in Dundee Park have been sharpening their strides for almost two years now, and they can make newcomers walk 'til they drop.

Instructor Donna Ricciardelli's route is an extensive four-mile course that wraps around rolling terrain and steep inclines. To this, she adds squat walks, backwards walking, stairs and skipping.

Yes, skipping.

"Your heart rate will really be up there," Ricciardelli promises.

After climbing up School Street, scaling the steps at Phillips Academy's Addison Gallery, and skipping through the Park — really getting some great air, by the way — a newcomer's gasps may give some indication of the blood thumping through his or her veins.

Six women, who more or less consider themselves regular "walkers," devote Thursday mornings at 9:30 to this almost 90-minute routine of powerwalking, stretching, and strength-training.

They start out slow in the Station's lobby with a little bit of stretching, but then the front doors fly open, and boom — they're off.

It truly is walking with power. These women cover approximately four miles, water bottles in tow, including two stretching pauses, all within an hour and five minutes.

Do the math. These women are really moving.

While walking when you can run may seem strange to seasoned athletes, it is just as good a workout as pounding Powerwalking instructor Donna Ricciardelli takes time to do some stretches. At right (top and bottom photos), she leads Jeannie Scarpa, Julie McLaughlin and Harriet Sheridan through the paces.

Neighbors and rink

but they have adopted an attitude of "too bad."

But Michael and Carolyn Shannon of 10 Bancroft Road suggest that the root of the communication problem lies specifically with PA liaison Michael Williams. The Shannons, who are tapped into a sewer line that runs beneath the school's property, say they came into contact with Williams last August when he informed them that they needed an easement from the school that would legally allow them to utilize the land through which their sewer line runs. Williams came across as threatening to the Shannons in two separate encounters, they say. Though the Shannons' easement conflict does not have a direct connection to the ongoing hockey rink project, the Shannons say that Williams' behavior in this situation may be indicative of his lack of communication skills with the neighbors in general.

"The hostility meter (between the Neighbors and Williams) is really high," said Carolyn Shannon. "The concerns of the neighbors are reasonable concerns, made by reasonable people. All they need is some reasonable consideration," which Williams has not offered yet, she said.

"Phillips Academy has had meetings (with the neighbors)," said Michael Shannon, meaning five previous gatherings. "The problem is that when issues are brought up, they are just dismissed."

The Shannons say they are only the first ones suggesting that communication problems may lie with Williams in particular. Their feelings about Williams are representative of many of the neighbors, they said, many of whom are too afraid to speak out about the liaison specifically.

But Planning Chairman Michael Miller, who has watched the three PA presentations to date, says both the neighbors and PA have received a fair chance to be heard.

Phillips has done an exceptionally good job of reaching out to the surrounding community to communicate the details of the project, as well as hear the residents' concerns, said Miller. "I've seen proposals over the years where applicants don't try to reach out to the neighbors," he said. "But Phillips Academy has listened to their concerns. I think they've tried to study alternatives and make improvements in the plan."

There is a difference between listening to someone and agreeing with them, Miller added. "If people oppose everything you do, it doesn't mean you're not listening," he said. "People can disagree with the final results, but that doesn't mean their concerns weren't taken into account."

Williams feels this has been the case thus far. "Although we have heard (the neighbors' concerns), we don't always agree with them."

In addition, Williams said, opportunity for the neighbors to be heard is not over yet. The Planning Board hearing, continued to Tuesday, Aug. 1, is structured to allow equal opportunity. The proponent of the plan first presents the project, and then entertains questions from the Planning Board. This is as far as the hearings have generally gotten, he said, and the final phase of the hearings, when the public can voice concerns, is just beginning. Therefore, it's possible some neighbors believe they haven't had equal opportunity, he says.

"To date, there has been less comment by the public," Williams said, "but by the end, everybody will have had a reasonable opportunity to express their points of view."

In terms of the Shannons' easement conflicts, PA Director of Business Services Susan Stott said poor communication caused the problem, and a resolution is in the near future. "Somehow we weren't communicating with each other," she said, "but at least this piece is relatively easy to fix."

The relations between the neighbors and the school should follow suit, she says, noting a letter written by Head of School Barbara Chase in reply to many neighbors' requests and concerns.

Powerwalking women hit the streets

the pavement, says Ricciardelli. In some ways, it can be better. For example, there's a lot less impact on the walker's knees, because the bouncing of jogging is replaced by a swift and streamlined rhythmic movement.

Ricciardelli, who never runs due to knee problems, will walk up to seven miles a day.

Aside from an occasional blister, there's less wear and tear on the whole body.

In addition, powerwalking hits multiple muscle groups, for an all-over body training, says Ricciardelli. It's more than just building endurance and burning calories.

Though the number of walkers hitting the streets have lessened since the mercury has risen, Ricciardelli has instructed up to 17 striders in a class at once, especially in early spring when the weather is just right for outside exercise.

But powerwalking does have some definite drawbacks when it comes to inclement weather. Ice and snow don't seem to mix with the rubber tread of sneakers, and the Station doesn't own any snowshoes.

While they are certainly welcome, there's been only one man to ever join Ricciardelli's powerwalking classes.

So, for now, it's powerwalking women who are there for their own enjoyment and better health, says Ricciardelli.

And a big part of the fun is enjoying the warm weather, admiring the scenery while strutting by, and still having enough breath left for a good chat.

As Ricciardelli says, you don't get bored.

"You're talking, you're walking, and there, you're done."

Montalto speaks to 1,500 in Australia, New Zealand

Lillian Montalto was a general-session speaker for the Australasian Conference in Sydney, Australia, sponsored by Australia's largest real estate company, McGrath Partners.

In response to attendees' requests, McGrath Partners invited Montalto and asked her to speak on her systems, service, and personal motivation, says a release.

Montalto also spoke in New Zealand at Fred Grosse's 100 Group.

Real estate transactions are conducted differently in Australia and New Zealand than in the United States, where multiple listings and private sales are foreign concepts. Instead, sales are conducted through high-profile auctions.

"When done right, it benefits the seller tremendously," says Montalto. "It doesn't drag on because the house is sold in one day, and, more often than not, the process drives the price up for the

Toy store goes Crazy, today

By Dawn Shea

Look out Andover, Crazy Bones are coming to town!

The one-inch tall, wacky-faced plastic characters used to play games similar to marbles, jacks and bowling will be demonstrated at Learning Express today, Thursday, July 13 at 10 a.m.

According to Chip Will, owner of Learning Express, representatives from Toy Craze, Inc., which markets the collectible game pieces, will set up games today and offer giveaways, including T-shirts and game pieces.

Brought to the United States in 1998, Crazy Bones was adapted from the 2000-year-old Greek game Tapas, which children played with painted sheep's knuckles.

Today, the sheep's knuckles have been replaced with 60 plastic characters, all of whom come in a variety of colors.

The games, however, are still basically the same.

With 11 official games and countless made-up games, Crazy Bones gets kids to play together. In the traditional game, each player throws five characters into the air at the same time, and earns points according to how the characters land. In other games, such as bowling, players try to knock down opponents' pieces for points or for keeps.

Bone yard — Kendall Wipff, 7, and her brother Bennett, 2 1/2, get acquainted with Crazy Bones characters at Learning Express. They'll have more intense opportunities this morning, July 13. More than $20 million in Crazy Bones materials were sold in America last year.

"It has all the fun of Pokemon without the downside," concludes Will, referring to the fact that Pokemon was banned in some schools because of the cut-throat trading it invoked. By comparison, Crazy Bones has been accepted by parents and teachers, he says.

"Parents actually like it. It's based on fun rather than negotiating," he continues.

Professional Profile

Warren J. Maddox, Jr., D. C. Doctor of Chiropractic

Maddox Chiropractic

Dr. Warren Maddox, Jr. has been providing chiropractic care since 1983, with offices in his hometown of Andover and in Londonderry, NH. Chiropractic centers on treating musculoskeletal conditions with spinal manipulation. Dr. Maddox explains that the spine is at the core of our ability to function: every part of the body is dependent on the nervous system and the spine that houses it. Back, neck, leg and arm pain, and headaches are all common ailments that many of us endure and which chiropractic therapy can help alleviate.

Whether the source of his patient's distress is injury, stress, or postoperative complications, Dr. Maddox says the key to successful treatment is threefold: listening to the patient, the therapy itself, and patient participation. The first step involves taking a thorough history and then performing a complete exam. Not only does this provide the information Dr. Maddox needs, it also establishes a trusting and caring relationship, which he believes is vital. Therapy includes a painless, gentle spinal manipulation, which induces mobility into the spine, increasing the range of motion. Rather than just treating the symptom, this works to correct the underlying condition. Adjunctive therapy such as ice, heat, electrical muscle stimulation and ultrasound may also be employed. At the same time, the patient learns how to make necessary changes in lifestyle and habits. Dr. Maddox also teaches therapeutic stretching and strengthening exercises that the patient does at home.

Be kind to yourself and your body when the need arises. Call Dr. Maddox at (978) 557-8200. There is 24-hour answering service for your convenience. He accepts and files for most insurance providers, many of which do not require physician referrals. His office is located at 180 River Rd., Andover, 1/2 mile off Exit 45 Rt. 93, traveling toward Tewksbury.

Crazy bones

An international success, Crazy Bones is also doing well in the United States, with sales over $20 million in 1999.

"They're definitely one of my best-selling items right now," says Will, who attributes some of the Crazy Bones success to its attractive price. Bones sell for $2 for a four-pack of characters.

To further boost its popularity and col-lectibility Crazy Bones will team up with McDonald's this October to offer two Monster Crazy Bones toys, a collectible sticker and a Crazy Bones game in every Happy Meal.

The 24 specially-designed, larger-sized toys will include 12 classic Crazy Bones characters, including Eggy, Menace and Speedy, as well as 12 newly created characters.

According to Toy Craze, the variety of colors each character will come in makes this the largest variety of collectibles in McDonald's history.

Andover Post 8 pounds its way into first place with decisive wins

By Rick Harrison

Photos by Carol Van Doren

The Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team, pounding the ball impressively and consistently, powered into undisputed possession of first place in Essex County League Zone 8 with a series of recent lopsided victories.

Scoring 99 runs in six games (16.5 average), Post 8 blasted Lynn Gautreau (12-4), Lawrence (16-3), Lynn Post 6 (19-7), Newburyport (12-7), Salem (26-4) and Middleton (14-4).

Those wins stretched the locals' victory streak through 11 games and improved the overall record to 12-1.

Andover outscored its first 13 opponents by a wide 159-58 margin.

Trailing close behind Andover in the Zone 8 standings are Danvers, Gloucester and Revere with two losses each entering the week. Beverly, Newburyport and Lynn Gautreau have four losses apiece.

"We have seven teams vying for the four playoff positions," said Post 8 head coach Joe Iarrobino.

Andover began the week needing three more wins to clinch one of the playoff spots.

The regular season ends this week for Post 8, which is currently in the midst of a five-games-in-six-days grind.

The locals played Saugus and Peabody (last night) earlier this week, and wrap it up with a makeup game at Beverly tomorrow (Friday) night (6 p.m., Cooney Field) and home games at Peter Aumais Park against Haverhill (Saturday, 5 p.m.) and Lynn Post 345 (Sunday, 5 p.m.).

The best-of-3 preliminary round playoff series, with the top four finishers from Zone 8 playing the top four from Zone 5, begin early next week.

Zone 5 teams battling for playoff berths include Lowell (15-1), Chelmsford (12-2), Wakefield (11-2), Reading (10-3), Newton (10-5), Arlington (9-5) and Billerica (8-6).

The elimination series precede the annual State Legion Tournament, which Andover has qualified for five times in the last decade.

Lefty Kevin Shepard, pitching for the first time since the middle of the high school season, threw 47 pitches over a 2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>-inning relief stint to pick up the win as Andover Post 8 came from a 7-0 deficit to defeat Newburyport 12-7 at Peter Aumais Park. Shepard, who also had a hit, 2 RBI and scored 2 runs, scattered three Newburyport hits and struck out four. Andover entered the week atop Essex County League Zone 8 with a 12-1 record and an 11-game win streak. ▶▶

ANDOVER 14 MIDDLETON 4

After falling behind 4-0 early at Aumais Park, Andover tied it with four runs in the bottom of the third before adding a run in the fourth, seven in the fifth and two in the sixth.

The game was halted after six innings by a combination of darkness and rain.

Righthander Mark Matos (1-0) earned his first pitching victory in relief of starter Jason White. Matos scattered four hits while tossing shutout ball over the final 3 2/3 innings, fanning one and walking one.

"Mark was very effective. He kept the ball low and got a ton of ground-ball outs," said Iarrobino.

The Andover infield turned three double plays behind Matos. Shortstop Chris Caverly and second baseman Chris Hanlon turned two, in the third and fourth innings, while third baseman Sean Lawton stepped on the bag and gunned a strike to first baseman Dave Powers to complete a 5-3 twin-killing in the fifth.

Andover erased the 4-0 deficit in the third. Jeff Volinski launched a triple to right-center and scored on Caverly's double to left-center. Danny Hughes walked and consecutive RBI singles were laced by Kevin Shepard, Josh Topp and Lawton.

With two outs in the fourth, Caverly singled and circled the bases on Hughes' triple down the right field line to put Post 8 ahead, 5-4.

Amazingly, Andover did not have a hit in the seven-run fifth as several Middleton Post 227 pitchers became unglued.

Walks to Topp, Powers and Lawton loaded the bases, and Topp scored on Volinski's infield out. Hanlon walked with two outs to re-load the bases, and consecutive walks to Caverly, Hughes, Shepard and Topp forced home four runs. Powers and Lawton were hit by pitches to plate the final two runs.

Paul Wysocki's two-run triple in the sixth completed the assault.

Caverly and Volinski sparked the 10-hit attack with two safeties each. Caverly scored three times while Hughes, Shepard, Volinski and Han-Andover Post 8 slugger Andy Salini (center) approaches home plate and gets ready to exchange a double high-5 with Sean Lawton (22) in the third inning of a come-from-behind 12-7 win over Newburyport. Salini belted a two-run homer, his second of the season, after Lawton had been hit by a pitch with two outs. Salini also had a triple and scored three runs. Also waiting to greet Salini is on-deck batter Jeff Volinski (left).

Andover Post 8 first baseman Dave Powers takes a mighty cut, which resulted in a two-run double during the fourth inning of a 12-7 victory over Newburyport Post 150 in American Legion action at Aumais Park.

Andover Post 8 second baseman Chris Hanlon had a hit and scored once as Post 8 defeated Newburyport. Later in the week Hanlon ripped an inside-the-park homer against Salem Post 23 and participated in four double plays in wins over Salem and Middleton Post 227.

Left-hander Andy Salini started on the mound for Andover Post 8 in a 12-7 win over Newburyport Post 150. Although Salini lasted only 2 1/2 innings on the hill, he powered the come-from-behind win with a triple, two-run homer and three runs scored.

Andover Post 8 third baseman Sean Lawton awaits the pitch in a recent Legion game against Newburyport Post 150 at Aumais Park. Lawton had a base hit and scored twice as Andover won, 12-7.

Andover Post 8 head coach Joe Iarrobino (16, left) discusses strategy with Andy Salini (21) before he goes to bat. Apparently the talk worked as Salini went 2-for-2 with a triple, long two-run homer and three runs scored as the locals defeated Newburyport, 12-7.

Chris Hanlon legs out a hit in a 12-7 Andover Post 8 American Legion win over Newburyport Post 150 at Peter Aumais Park. Andover entered the week riding an 11-game win streak and was 12-1 overall for first place in Essex County League Zone 8.

Andover Post 8 leadoff batter Danny Hughes takes off for first base after one of his two hits (double, single) in a 12-7 win over Newburyport Post 150. Centerfielder Hughes also drove home a run and scored once. Watching the the background are catcher Josh Topp (left) and head coach Joe Iarrobino.

Andover 26 Salem 4

Post 8 had a field day at Palmer's Cove on the way to victory against host Salem Post 23, with home runs by Sean Lawton and Chris Hanlon highlighting the productive evening.

Once again the game was stopped after six innings.

Lawton's first homer of the season came in the fifth inning, a three-run shot that cleared the 400-foot sign on the fence in straightaway center field.

"The ball landed about 30 feet beyond the fence," said Iarrobino. "He just crushed it and it was nice to see him smiling again."

Lawton finished with two hits and four runs scored.

Dave Powers contributed a double, two singles, three RBI and four runs scored, while Kevin Shepard belted a pair of doubles, a single, scored three times and had one RBI.

Hanlon smacked two hits, including an inside-the-park homer, while others with a pair of safeties each were Danny Hughes (four runs scored), Josh Topp (three runs scored) and Andy Salini (double).

Rich Sheldon and Chris Caverly launched a double each, while Bob Mazza drilled a single as the locals finished with 19 hits.

Righthander Paul Wysocki (2-0) notched the pitching victory with four innings of four-hit work. He struck out three and walked two.

Lefty Rich Sheldon mopped up, yielding two hits and whiffing two in the final two frames.

Andover middle infielders Hanlon and Caverly turned two more double plays.

Andover 12 Newburyport 7

Trailing 7-2 after two innings at Aumais Park, Andover rallied for two runs in the third, five in the fourth and three in the fifth to defeat Post 150.

Lefty Kevin Shepard (1-0), pitching for the first time since midway through the high school season, earned the win with 2 1/3 innings of shutout relief. Shepard allowed three hits while striking out four and walking one.

"Shep threw on the side a couple days before the game and felt fine," said Iarrobino. "We put him on a 45-pitch count (he actually threw 47) and he looked very good."

Andy Salini and Jason White (sixth inning) also pitched in the game, halted after six innings by darkness.

A key point came when Newburyport, leading 7-4 in the top of the fourth, loaded the bases with two outs. Shepard worked out of the jam by whirling and throwing to Chris Hanlon to pick the runner off second base.

"The count was 3-2 on the batter and who knows what might have happened without the pickoff," said Iarrobino. "After we got out of the inning we scored five in the bottom half to take the lead for good."

In the Post 8 second, Andy Salini hammered a one-out triple to right-center and scored on Jeff Volinski's infield out. Hanlon was then hit by a pitch, stole second and crossed on Chris Caverly's single.

With two outs in the Andover third, Sean Lawton was hit by a pitch and Salini belted a two-run homer (second of season) to right-center.

Caverly and Shepard started the five-run Andover go-ahead rally in the fourth by drawing walks. Dave Powers followed with a two-out, two-run double up the left-centerfield gap.

Walks to Lawton and Salini loaded the bases for Volinski, who lashed a two-run single to center for an 8-7 Post 8 lead. Salini and Volinski worked a double steal, and Salini raced home on a dropped third strike.

In the fifth Caverly reached on an infield error, Danny Hughes doubled and Shepard drilled a two-run double to right-center. He advanced to third on a passed ball and scored on Josh Topp's sac-fly to left.

Leadoff batter Hughes, Salini and Volinski led the 11-hit barrage with two safeties each, Salini scored three runs while Shepard, Lawton and Caverly each crossed the plate twice.

Andover Americans, Nationals prepare for showdown

By Rick Harrison

The stage is set and town bragging rights are at stake.

Recent victories by the Andover American and Andover National Major 11-12 year old All-Stars in the District 14 Little League Tournament winner's bracket quarterfinals have created an interesting situation.

A highly-anticipated intra-town showdown, which both sides have been waiting a week to play, is scheduled for tomorrow night under the lights at Deyermund Field.

Defending district champ Andover American pulled away from stubborn Lowell Highland in the late innings on the way to an 11-5 triumph in its quarterfinal under the lights at the Bailey School field in Lowell.

Andover National rode steady defense and the four-hit pitching of lefthander Mike Burbank to glory as it shut down South Lawrence West, 6-1, at Deyermund Field.

The Americans improved to 3-0 in tourney play while the Nationals are 2-0.

The winner's bracket semifinal tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. will leave the victor as one of two teams, from an original field of 18, still undefeated in the double-elimination tourney.

The other unbeaten playing tomorrow night are Chelmsford Fitts (2-0) and Tewksbury National (2-0).

The Andover team that loses tomorrow will then have to win five straight games to capture the district title.

"It's too bad we have to meet this early in the tournament," said National head coach Joe Carroll. "I wish it was a little further down the line."

Carroll's NL champion Braves won the Town Championship in late June by sweeping a best-of-3 series against American All-Star head coach Kevin Rourke's Red Sox.

This is the AL's chance to bounce back.

The home team will be decided by a pre-game coin flip.

Andover Little League All-Star teams comprised of older players in two other District 14 divisions were not as successful.

Both the Senior 14-16 and Junior 13-14 squads were ousted from the tournament over the weekend.

The Seniors, following their tourney-opening 13-3 win over Methuen West B, lost 15-0 to defending district champ Tewksbury National and 9-3 to Methuen West A under the lights at Veterans Park in Methuen.

The Juniors, after losing their tourney opener to Billerica American A, were eliminated by South Lawrence West, 9-5, at Mt. Vernon Park in Lawrence.

MAJOR 11-12 DIVISION

Andover National 6 South Lawrence West 1

Southpaw Mike Burbank shut down the visitors on four hits, and Pat Tonelli highlighted a five-run second inning with a three-run homer, as the Nationals posted a business-like victory.

Burbank struck out seven, walked four and allowed only a third-inning run which was earned.

Ryan Beechiner and Dan Vining opened the pivotal second inning with back-to-back singles, and they moved into scoring position on a passed ball.

Tyler Fitzpatrick's infield out plated Beechiner and Eric Champion's single rescued Vining for a 2-0 edge.

Leadoff batter Austin Gilbert reached on an error, setting the table for Tonelli who cleared it with his three-run homer to left-center.

The final A-N run came in the sixth when Mike Bruno spanked a two-out single, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball.

"The kids played steady defense — nothing spectacular — for the second straight game," said Nationals' manager Joe Carroll. "That and the strong pitching carried us through."

Ten players laced a hit each for the locals. Adding a single apiece were Gilbert, Burbank, Mike D'Angelo, Ben MacDonald and Greg Carroll.

Andover American 11 Lowell Highland 5

Highland was the first opponent to get a hit and score a run against the stingy Americans, whose earlier back-to-back no-hit shutouts were against South Lawrence East and Haverhill American.

Lowell remained in serious contention until the final inning, trailing only 6-4 before Andover rallied for five backbreaking runs in the top of the sixth.

Righthander Paul Malaguti (1-0) became the third Americans' pitcher to notch a tournament win, tossing a complete-game six-hitter with seven strikeouts and two walks. Only three Highland runs were earned.

Trailing 1-0 in the third, Andover tied it with a tainted run when Zach O'Donnell reached on a two-base error, took third on Chris Browne's sacrifice bunt and scored on Andrew Hennessey's infield out.

Dan McDonnell led off the fourth with his first tournament home run to give the Americans a lead they never relinquished.

Chris Gibson roped a pinch-hit double down the left field line and scored on Paul Sartori's single. O'Donnell followed with a single and Browne made it 4-1 with an RBI single to left.

The lead jumped to 6-1 in the fifth when McDonnell drew a two-out walk and Bobby Hughes launched a two-run pinch-hit homer over the fence in left-center.

Four players have combined to hit five homers in three tournament games for the Americans.

"Our bench players have come through for us in every game," said Americans' manager Kevin Rourke. "Everyone is contributing."

Highland bounced back with three runs in the bottom of the fifth to make it 6-4.

Joe Benedix opened the Andover sixth by reaching on an error. O'Donnell singled to left, and Browne's bunt resulted in a fielder's choice. Hennessey beat out an infield hit to load the bases, and three runs scored on Nick Caro's two-run single and a throwing error.

Eleven players contributed at least one safety to the Americans' attack, with leadoff batter O'Donnell and Brown lacing two each. McDonnell and O'Donnell both scored twice.

Defensive standouts were O'Donnell at shortstop and Caro with a diving catch in center field.

Brad Poindexter powered Lowell with a double, homer, three RBI and two runs scored. Pitcher Matt Lee added a single and RBI.

SENIOR 14-16 DIVISION

Tewksbury National 15

Andover 0

Defending District champ Tewksbury National, which followed this resounding victory with a 13-1 romp over Chelmsford Lupien, scored seven runs in the first inning and came back with six more in the third.

The game, played at Hazel Field in Tewksbury, was halted after five innings by the mercy rule.

There were some brief fireworks as two Andover coaches were ejected by the base umpire for questioning a pickoff call at second base.

The ejections did not appear justified, however, as neither coach argued loudly or for any length of time.

Andover managed only three singles in the game — one each by Mike Bouchard, Matt Wainor and starting pitcher Mike Zuill.

Righthander Bill Sullivan went the five-inning distance on the mound for T-N, striking out seven and walking three.

JUNIOR 13-14 DIVISION

South Lawrence West 9

Andover 5

SLW jumped ahead 3-0 in the bottom of the first, and scored five runs in the fourth to gain some breathing room after Andover had closed the deficit to 4-3 with three runs in the top of the inning.

Andover added its final two runs in the sixth, and appeared to have a rally started in the seventh before West turned a line drive into a double play to end the threat.

comp under the lights at the Breed Junior High field in Lynn.

Left-hander Jeff Volinski (11), who pitched the first three innings and the final three, allowed only four hits and two runs. He struck out 10 batters including six of the first seven he faced.

In the Andover second Andy Salimi and Volinski singled, Hanlon walked to load the bases and Danny Hughes smacked a two-run single to center.

Kevin Shepard followed with an RBI single to right, and after Dave Powers walked Lawton cleared the bases with a three-run double to right-center.

Hughes lashed a two-run single in the third as the lead jumped to 8-0.

The locals made it 1-1 with six more in the top of the fourth, the key strokes two-run singles by Chris Caverly and Josh Topp.

Lawton's two-run double highlighted the seventh.

Lawton finished with a pair of doubles and five RBI, while Hughes went 3-for-6 with four RBI and Salimi was also 3-for-6.

Caverly contributed two hits, three RBI and three runs scored, and Shepard had two hits, two ribbies and three runs scored.

Topp (two RBI) and Volinski (RBI, two runs) also had two hits each as Post 8 faced 17 safeties.

every shot."

The final round of the Lowell tourney was only the third time Oppenheim had played Vesper, a narrow course with lightning-fast greens. Accuracy and intelligence count for a lot at the Tyngs Isle course.

"It's tough tee to green," said Oppenheim. "You definately have to make some shots to score well — especially on the finishing holes. You have to grind hard out there."

The head pro at both of Oppenheim's home courses, Dave Lane at Indian Ridge and Gene Manley at Long Meadow, see nothing but success down the road for Oppenheim.

"He's got all the tools and the temperament," said Manley. "And, best of all, he's only 20."

Later this summer Oppenheim will compete in the Mass. Amateur, New England Amateur, North-South Tournament and U.S. Open Qualifier at Winchester CC.
